The Lowdown on Lactation with The Boob Geek Tipper Gallagher, IBCLC

Tiffany (Tipper) Gallagher, BA, IBCLC, RLC, is an International Board Certified Lactation Consultant, editor, mother of four (including a set of twins), and all-around nerd about a whole lot of things. In her private lactation consulting practice, she provides in-home visits for families experiencing breastfeeding difficulties as well as prenatal and postnatal education in private and group settings. She is also a lactation consultant on staff at Hennepin County Medical Center, which serves the needs of the diverse community of Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minnesota. Tipper melds her passions for writing, advocacy, and sharing evidence-based information by blogging at www.theboobgeek.com and presenting at conferences. Tipper volunteers as the webinar team leader as part of the International Lactation Consultant Association's Professional Development Committee and serves on the Steering Committee and various sub-committees of the Minnesota Breastfeeding Coalition. Tipper passed the IBLCE exam in 2015 after attending the University of California—San Diego's lactation consultant certificate program, and is a member of the International Lactation Consultant Association, United States Lactation Consultant Association, and Minnesota Breastfeeding Coalition.
